

THAT SPECIAL SENSE OF PLACE...

A FEELING OF COMMUNITY...

John, a software engineer employed by a large firm in Pittsburgh, moved his family to Denver, Colorado, to help establish a new division of his expanding company. On the surface, John and his wife and their two young children, saw the move as a new adventure. Yet beneath the surface, the young couple knew such a move to another city was a dramatic change and a potential upheaval. John and his wife wondered how they would find good schools...they wondered how they would find a neighborhood they could feel at home in – a neighborhood with retail shops and places to walk nearby, and a park within walking distance for their kids. John and his wife had basic questions about finding the right kind of house of worship...

And with the demands of a new job looming, John worried about spreading himself too thin...

What if his employer could his family a personal service that could 'pinpoint' the most desirable neighborhoods and provide demographics and information about schools? What if his employer found a service that could take the time to give John and his family tours of neighborhoods in Denver and the surrounding counties that were a good 'fit', enabling John and his family to get a jump-start on building that special sense of place, and that feeling of community so vital to starting a new home and building a new life?

John's company hired Your Colorado Connection.

Because like all caring employers, John's company wanted to provide their new employee with the resources for a happier, better adjusted and more productive transition to Colorado.